

FIRE COMMISSIONERS
IN MONTHLY SESSION

The Board of Fire Commissioners held their regular monthly meeting at the City Hall last Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, Chairman Augustien presiding.

A communication was sent to the City Council by the fire commissioners, recommending the purchase of a 40-foot extension ladder to be placed on Truck No. 2. They intend also to take up the proposition of purchasing an inhalator for the use of both the fire and police departments.

It is the belief of the fire commissioners that a great improvement has been made in the department, which will be of great advantage and better fire protection for Daly City.

Another fire truck has been added to the department and has been placed in Company No. 4 fire house on Peoria street, as ordered by Chief J. Kennedy. This truck has been equipped with a pump of 450 gallons capacity.

In making these changes, and with the additional apparatus, the commissioners deemed it wise to divide the city into two fire districts.

District No. 1 will take in all the territory comprising Company No. 1, 2 and 3 districts. District No. 2 will comprise Company No. 4 and 5 districts.

Were a fire to occur in any part of District No. 1, Companies No. 1, 2 and 3 would answer the alarm, Companies 4 and 5 standing by at their respective fire houses until either returned to their homes or called to the fire by the chief in charge. Were the fire to occur in District No. 2, Companies 4 and 5 would answer, and Companies 1, 2 and 3 stand by.

In putting this order into operation it not only increases the efficiency of the department, but also better protects all parts of the city, and also avoids to a great extent the necessity of having fire apparatus crossing Mission street.

The newly appointed assistant chief, who will be in charge of District No. 2, is Andrew Chesney, of Crocker avenue. Chief Chesney was a former member of the San Francisco fire department, and the commissioners feel that with Chief Kennedy at the head, assisted by Chiefs F. Hanson and A. Chesney, and additional apparatus, the Daly City fire department has made a great step forward.

And do not forget to make yourself familiar with the location of your nearest fire box. Use the fire alarm box in preference to the telephone, but if you must use the telephone, simply say to the operator: "Give me the Daly City fire or police department."

PASTOR WELCOMED AT GRACE CHURCH

A reception and dinner was held at Grace Presbyterian church, on Hanover street, last Wednesday evening, in honor of Rev. and Mrs. Chandler. Rev. Chandler has been called as pastor of the Grace Presbyterian church.

Dinner was served by a committee of the ladies under the supervision of Mrs. Nagel to about 140 guests.

After the dinner a business meeting was held by the members of the church to make plans for the future, and the meeting was adjourned to next Wednesday at 8 p. m., to complete the plans.

Grace Presbyterian church, under the leadership of Rev. Chandler, will hold Sunday school at 10 a. m., Christian Endeavor at 7 p. m., and church service at 8 p. m. The pastor's topic next Sunday evening will be "Christ Pre-eminent." Miss Mildred Swan, pianist, Walter and Jack Parker, violinists, and Mr. E. Barazoto, soloist.

CROCKER-PERSHING P. T. A.
INSTALLS NEW OFFICERS

The Crocker-Pershing P. T. A. met last Tuesday afternoon at the Pershing school on Hanover street. Miss V. Russell, of Belmont, Seventeenth district president, was present to install the new officers and also gave the ladies a very interesting talk on P. T. A. work. Plans were started for a whist party to be held in the near future.

The following officers were installed: Mrs. R. E. Hass, president; Mrs. I. Alexander, vice-president; Mrs. K. McDermott, secretary; Mrs. J. Cosbie, treasurer; Mrs. E. Crocker, financial secretary.

BOY RUN DOWN BY AUTO

Ernest Pezzola, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Pezzola, of Miriam street, was run over by a machine last Wednesday afternoon, at Vista Grande and Santa Barbara avenues. He was taken to the South San Francisco hospital, where he is suffering from a broken bone in the knee.

POLICE SHOW SPEED
IN ANSWERING CALL

It is sometimes said that you can never get a police officer when you want one; that he is never around when he is needed or when there is trouble. But such is not the case in Daly City.

Last Sunday morning at 1 o'clock a party of law-breakers were disturbing the peace at the corner of Gambetta and Mission streets. A resident of that section who was awakened by the noise sent in a hurried call to the police officers on night duty, and as he described it, he had hardly hung up the telephone when the police officers arrived and arrested the men.

Our police officers are always on duty, and we may well feel proud of them, as they do all in their power to make Daly City a peaceful place in which to live. So let's all help the members of the police department in the performance of their duty, and law-breaking will be kept down in our community.

POPULAR COUPLE
UNITED IN MARRIAGE

Miss Theresa S. Stampanoni, only and popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Stampanoni, of San Pedro avenue, Colma, was united in marriage to Mr. Lester H. Langford, of San Francisco, at her parent's home last Sunday afternoon, September 2, at 4 o'clock.

The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion and the altar placed in the spacious hallway was decorated in pink baby roses, intermingled with maidenhair and asparagus ferns.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Joseph Schenone, with the assistance of Augustine Gaggero, who acted as altar boy. During the ceremony Mrs. Josephine Clervy sang "O Promise Me," and "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Miss Mary Belli.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was beautifully gowned in white chiffon and lace with a long veil of real point lace, and she carried a shower bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Miss Louise Silicani, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, and wore a pretty gown of green taffeta, carrying a bouquet of pink roses.

Little Doris Degliantoni, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Degliantoni, of Mission street, was flower girl. She was daintily gowned in pink georgette and carried a basket of pink baby roses.

Mr. Angelo Stampanoni, Jr., brother of the bride, was best man.

At 6 o'clock a reception and wedding dinner was held at the Fior d'Italia Cafe, on Kearney street, for over one hundred and fifty guests, after which dancing was enjoyed.

During the dinner, Senator Charles Goodsell acted as toastmaster, calling on Professor W. J. Savage, Mrs. Charles Wardwell, Mrs. Lizzie Atkinson, Joe Altieri, Tony Sturla, Adolph Bertini, Mr. Thompson, W. Morry and the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. L. Langford. Two songs were rendered by Mrs. John Klein.

The young couple made their departure during the late hours of the evening and will spend their honeymoon on a motor trip as far north as Canada, and upon their return will make their home in the Lagomarsino apartments on Mission and Oliver streets in San Francisco. They were the recipients of many beautiful and costly gifts, proving their popularity.

LOCAL BALL TEAM
WINS ANOTHER GAME

The Daly City Merchants' baseball team added one more game to their list of victories last Sunday, when they defeated the Golden Gate Seals by the score of 7 to 2. Both B. Strand and Ford for Daly City pitched good ball. The Daly City Merchants made 16 hits, 7 runs and 2 errors. The Seals made 7 hits, 2 runs and 3 errors. Batteries—For Daly City, B. Strand, Ford, F. Strand and Reardon; Golden Gate Seals, D. Code and Schultz.

STUDENT FEE REFUND OFFICIALLY ORDERED

Students of the San Mateo Junior College have been informed that if they file claims by September 15, with the approval of their parents, they can have their $10 student body fee returned. Some of the students had objected to paying the fee, hence the order to return the money to those making application. Opinion varies at the college, it is said, as to the action to be taken by the students. Some believe that there will be very few that will file the claims, while others are of the opinion that the treasurer will have to honor many of the claims.

On the Right Side of the Ledger

MILLS FIELD SHOWS
INCREASE IN BUSINESS

San Francisco's municipal airport at Mills Field, recognized by the aircraft industry as the barometer of commercial aviation in the West, showed a marked increase in business during August, according to a monthly report issued by Supervisor Milo F. Kent, chairman of the city's airport committee.

There were 1,931 flights and landings, with 3,763 passengers, recorded at Mills Field in August, a gain of approximately 600 per cent over the same month a year ago.

Indicative of the steady climb of air transportation, business has increased constantly each month at Mills Field since it was established sixteen months ago. The aggregate of flights and landings since May, 1927, is 14,483, with 24,139 passengers.

Revenue from hangar space for the past month was $1,633.55, lifting the enterprise closer to a self-supporting basis, which it is expected to reach soon.

Interest of the aviation world centered on Mills Field during August, with Colonel Charles Lindbergh using the airport as his Western headquarters in connection with his duties as technical director of the Transcontinental Air Transport.

"Lindy" likes Mills Field and has publicly complimented the management on its efficiency and service.

Another big event of August was the signing of a lease for 10,000 square feet of space at Mills Field by Union Air Lines officials for a terminal of its ramified lines, running on regular schedules throughout the Pacific Coast.

Mills Field executives will this month launch a campaign for the adoption by San Francisco voters of a bond issue for $1,750,000, to finance a huge development program to make San Francisco's airport the most spacious and best equipped flying field in the world. The board of supervisors has approved the measure and has recommended its passage to the voters.

REPORT ON MARRIAGE
AND DIVORCE IN 1927

The Department of Commerce announces that, according to the returns received, there were 53,487 marriages performed in California during the year 1927, as compared with 56,664 in 1926, representing a decrease of 3,177 or 5.6 per cent. Attention is called to a new law, effective July 29, 1927, making it compulsory to apply for a license at least three days in advance of the marriage ceremony. In 1916, 30,966 marriages were performed.

During the year 1927 there were 14,138 divorces granted in the state, as compared with 12,065 in 1926, representing an increase of 2,073 or 17.2 per cent. In 1916 there were 5,573 divorces granted. There were 1,601 marriages annulled in 1927, as compared with 1,282 in 1926.

The estimated population of the state of California on July 1, 1927, was 4,433,000, and on July 1, 1926, 4,316,000. On the basis of these estimates the number of marriages per 1,000 of population was 12.1 in 1927, as against 13.1 in 1926; and the number of divorces per 1,000 population was 3.19 in 1927, as against 2.80 in 1926.

The number of marriages was furnished by the State Board of Health, and the number of divorces by the county clerk of each county. The figures for 1927 are preliminary and subject to correction.

Pacific City Grounds Reported Sold

The sale of the grounds of Pacific City and much surrounding territory to the Western Pacific Railroad for use as railroad yards and terminal is reported on excellent authority in San Mateo and Burlingame.

OAKLAND PREPARING FOR ADMISSION DAY

One of the largest delegations to the official Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West celebration of Admission day in Oakland on September 8, 9 and 10, outside of the immediate region of San Francisco bay, will be that accompanying Grand Marshal A. W. Garcelon from Humboldt county parlors, who are to contribute contingents to the Native Sons parade. Garcelon is the mayor of Arcata.

By far the largest regional delegation will be that of San Francisco. There is to be a representation from each of the fifty-two parlors and the total is enough to make up four divisions of the official Native Sons parade the morning of September 10.

The Municipal Firemen's and Policemen's band of San Francisco will head the first division of the parade. George Wilson, of San Francisco, is the present head of the order of the Native Sons of the Golden West. Mayor James Rolph will march with his own parlor, as is his custom, he advises. The drill team of the California Grays from San Francisco will also occupy a place of honor in the parade, followed by the Gray's thirty-five piece band.

Conspicuous among the visitors will be police and fire contingents from various cities. Four squads are coming from San Jose. Police Chief Daniel O'Brien will have charge of the police detail for the San Francisco division of the parade. Chiefs will come from Vallejo, Santa Cruz, Emeryville and other cities.

The first big official event of the celebration is to be the meeting of the Native Daughters in the old Scottish Rite Cathedral in Oakland. Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, of Sacramento, now Grand President of the Native Daughters, is to be present.

"CHALLENGE OF THE CROSS" WILL BE PASTOR'S SUBJECT

"The Challenge of the Cross" will be the Sunday evening subject at the Daly City Methodist church. The pastor will again preach Sunday evening, but if not will provide a substitute. We invite you to make our church your church home. Church services at 8 p. m. Sunday school at 10 a. m., with classes for all ages.

Lo! Master, all men seek for Thee. These words the gentle Savior heard;

The sympathy within Him stirred; Each from his burden was set free.

He had been in a lonely place, Had prayed the Father's will to know Before He should arise and go Back to the throng that sought His grace.

That multitude in Palestine Implored the Christ for help, for peace;

He pitied all, gave each release, And bade them nevermore repine.

Like them, we know we cannot find Grace for our needs except in Him, O light that never can grow dim—The Star of Hope for all mankind.

A sad and weary world today Turns from its folly seeking Thee; Friend of the friendless, ever be Our comforter, our guide and stay.

Faith, lying gods we worshiped here; They promised peace, but gave us grief;

Now we come seeking Thy relief. And ask for light and love sincere.

—Clyde Edwin Tuck.

Will Celebrate Opening of Highway

A "breaking the barrier" celebration will be staged by San Mateo and San Francisco county boosters in October, when the Bay Shore highway will be opened for traffic to Fifth avenue, San Mateo, it is announced by Edmond Levy, president of the San Mateo Chamber of Commerce.

SOME ODDS AND ENDS OF THE WEEK'S NEWS

Fifteen aviators will leave Mills Field next Tuesday morning and race to Mines Field, Los Angeles. The contest is a feature of the National Air Races and Aeronautical Exposition, the winner receiving $2,000 and a cup awarded by the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Oakland police are seeking the murderer of L. C. Yee, a wealthy Chinese merchant of Oakland, who was slain Wednesday at the headquarters of the Hop Sing tong.

W. P. Taylor, of Sacramento, was elected president of the California Federation of Postoffice Clerks, and C. A. Tockstein, of Fresno, head of the California State Letter Carriers' Association at a joint convention of the two associations held in Sacramento.

With a gala three-day celebration, October 12 to 14, San Francisco will honor the memory of Columbus, discoverer of America, according to plans mapped out by the general committee in charge of the 1928 Columbus day observance.

A reduction of 10 cents per hundred in the San Bruno city tax rate has been announced by the city council.

Because air mail is landed at Bay Farm island, instead of Mills Field, the San Francisco supervisors have ordered an investigation to determine whether or not the metropolis is getting adequate air mail service.

As a result of the $15,000 bond issue recently voted on by the residents of South San Francisco, the high school in that city will have a brand new coat of paint, a tennis court will be built, and the school's athletic field improved.

Victim of an exploding shotgun, Peter Maghinaso, aged 17, of San Mateo, is in a Stockton hospital in a serious condition. The accident happened while he was hunting doves.

Montgomery-Ward Company, one of the largest mercantile concerns in the country, has purchased a retail store site in Redwood City and will erect a building there at once, it is reported.

Labor day hunting accidents resulted in death to two Californians and serious injury to four others.

Contract for the construction of a bridge across the Kings river near Reedley has been awarded, the successful contractors bidding $91,850, or about $8,000 less than the estimate by county engineers.

For his work in crime prevention and police organization, Chief of Police August Vollmer of Berkeley has been nominated for the annual Harmon Foundation prize for America's most useful citizen.

Three women and a 4-year-old girl were injured when the dome of the Palace of Fine Arts Building at the Pacific Southwest Exposition at Long Beach collapsed.

In a document filed in Superior Court, Albert M. Stewart, one of the six Folsom convicts sentenced to hang for his part in the Thanksgiving day outbreak, thanked the judge for his sympathetic attitude and help.

Death of 3-year-old Joseph Rossman, of Lynwood, is believed to have resulted from the boy eating poisoned food intended for his dog.

The theory that Henry Valdez, whose body was found on a railroad track in Oakland, was murdered has been abandoned. Evidence indicates that Valdez wandered onto the tracks while intoxicated.

Exactly 20,346 individual shipments of merchandise left San Francisco last month for foreign ports or non-contiguous American territory. The number of export declarations during the last two months exceeded by 5,000 or 15 per cent those filed during the first two months of the last fiscal year, commencing July 1, 1927.

San Francisco's city engineer has reported to the board of public works that construction of the proposed Broadway tunnel, connecting the North Beach and Marina districts, will cost approximately $1,520,000.

Headed by all the members of its old band that can be assembled, the 363rd infantry, of "Powder river—let 'er buck" fame during the World war, will parade up Market street, San Francisco, September 29, officially opening the regiment's two-day reunion.

SUPERVISORS SET
COUNTY TAX RATE

San Mateo county's total tax rate, as accepted by the board of supervisors at Redwood City last Tuesday, stands at $3.07 for property outside of incorporated cities. The rate for property inside of incorporated cities was fixed at $2.57.

The new rate, which is only 9 cents higher than that of last year, was adopted by the board after several weeks spent in preparing the yearly budget, in accordance with the new California budget law.

Twenty-five and two-tenths cents of the tax is for highways not included in last year's budget. Of this amount 5.6 cents is for improving the Middlefield road in the Third district, a feeder for the Dumbarton bridge approach; 5 cents is for the new coast highway, in which San Mateo county participates in the cost with San Francisco and Santa Cruz counties; 5 cents is for the proposed new Foot-hill boulevard, an extension of the Junipero Serra boulevard, in which San Mateo county joins with San Francisco in the cost of construction, San Francisco paying 85 per cent and San Mateo county 15 per cent; 5 cents is for the Memorial Park road; 2.3 cents is for the construction of the Gazos Creek road in the Fifth township, and a similar amount is for relocation work on the San Gregorio road, also in the Fifth township.

There is an increase of 13 cents in the rate this year for the schools of the county, and an increase of 8 cents for high school maintenance. All of the school requirements are mandatory.

There is an increase of 11.3 cents for the Community hospital in the new rate. This is explained, however, by the fact that last year there was a surplus of $8,000 in the fund. All this money has been expended and it was necessary to divert from the general and other funds to meet the current bills of the hospital the last few months.

WESTERN PACIFIC TO CARRY OUT PLANS

Plans of the Western Pacific Railroad to establish a main line along the Peninsula bay shore will in no way be affected by the proposed merger of the line with the Southern Pacific, according to statements made by high officials of the company this week. The surveys for the proposed line of the Western Pacific from Redwood City to San Francisco have been completed and negotiations are in progress to obtain the few remaining links in the right of way for the road.

Soon after announcement by the Western Pacific of plans for entering this territory in competition with the Southern Pacific, which has long held a monopoly on Peninsula traffic, rumors of the merger of the two roads became current.

The enthusiasm with which the announcement of the competing road's plans were received was dampened by the belief that the merger would end the plans and leave the Southern Pacific with an undisputed monopoly of freight and passenger traffic on the Peninsula.

Officials of the Western Pacific, however, declare that the proposed merger will expedite rather than delay the completion of the shore line railroad. "The merger, even if it is consummated, will in no way affect the plans of the Western Pacific to rush work on its new Peninsula line. In fact, if the plans as now contemplated mature successfully, the completion of the new road will be very materially hastened," declare officials of the railroad.

Negotiations for rights of way through the property of the Pacific Portland Cement Company were undertaken by railroad officials at the meeting of the board of directors of the cement company held last week, and according to reliable information, the railroad men assured the company officials that their plans are definite and will be carried to a rapid conclusion.

LEGISLATURE APPROVES
TAX BILL FOR BALLOT

By unanimous vote both houses of the state legislature on Wednesday approved for submission to the voters of California at the November 6 general election the State Taxation Commission's proposed constitutional amendment seeking to fix a 4 per cent net income tax on all banks and business corporations, exclusive of public utilities and insurance companies. The legislators also approved a new levy of 3 mills on a dollar against intangible securities.

The proposed amendment seeks to prevent the threatened loss of approximately $22,000,000 in state revenues due to a decision by the United States Supreme Court.

TEACHING CHILDREN FIRE PREVENTION

At a recent convention the Georgia Association of Insurance Agents' fire prevention activities were disclosed. They have done an important work in a praiseworthy manner.

The most outstanding part of the prevention program, perhaps, was the offering of prizes for the best fire prevention essay by school children. Hundreds of essays, many of them showing a real understanding of the subject, were turned in. As a result an instinct to be careful about fire was inculcated in the young mind.

It is safe to say that a generation which is trained in this manner will, when it comes of age, do much to ostracize fire waste, and it would be a fine thing if all children in all schools were given such training. Fire is one of the greatest enemies of progress and prosperity we have. The child who learns adequately of its destructiveness will be an adult with knowledge and the desire to prevent it.

Approximately 20,400,000 telephones out of the world's total of 29,400,000 on January 1, 1927, were operated by private concerns.

It is said that aviation has made forty-five new millionaires. Among them, we assume, a few undertakers.

There are said to be three million golf players in the United States. In fact, they admit it themselves.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE.

WHEREAS, DANIEL A. SLEVIN and CONSTANTINA D. SLEVIN, his wife, did, on the 10th day of March, 1927, make, execute and deliver their certain deed of trust, dated the 10th day of March, 1927, to the ANGLO-CALIFORNIA TRUST COMPANY, a corporation, as trustee, for the benefit of CLIFFORD S. ALLRED, as beneficiary, which said deed of trust was recorded on the 13th day of June, 1927, in the office of the County Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, in Vol. 306 of Official Records, at page 360, and which said deed of trust was given to secure the faithful performance of all obligations contained in said deed of trust and to secure the payment of a certain promissory note of said grantors, payable to said beneficiary, in the principal sum of twelve hundred dollars ($1200), and for that purpose conveyed to the said trustee the following described real property situated in the City of Daly City, County of San Mateo, State of California, to-wit:

Lot numbered thirty-four (34) in Block numbered twenty-nine (29), as shown on that certain map entitled "Map of the Crocker Estate Tract Subdivision No. 2," filed in the office of the County Recorder of San Mateo County March 5th, 1912, in Book 8 of Maps, at page 3, as said lot being more particularly described as follows, to-wit:

Beginning at the point of intersection of the southwesterly line of Roosevelt avenue with the southeasterly line of that certain 6.06-foot strip lying between said Block 29 as shown on that aforementioned map and Block 29 as shown on that certain map entitled "Map of the Crocker Estate Tract Subdivision No. 1," filed in the office of the County Recorder of San Mateo County June 1, 1908, in Book 6 of Maps, at page 16; thence from said point of beginning along said southwesterly line of Roosevelt avenue S. 31 degrees 01' 30" E. 54.53 feet; thence continuing along said line of Roosevelt avenue and along the northwesterly line of Templeton avenue, now known as Frankfort street, on a curve to the right tangent to said line of Roosevelt avenue, the radius of said curve being 38.55 feet; thence along said line of Roosevelt avenue, through a central angle of 79 degrees 14' 05" and an arc distance of 53.31 feet to the most southerly corner of said Lot 34; thence N. 31 degrees 01' 30" W. 96.91 feet to the south-easterly line of said 6.06-foot strip; thence along said last mentioned line N. 67 degrees 10' E. 31.67 feet to said line of Roosevelt avenue and the point of beginning.

Whereas, the said grantors have made default in the payment of said promissory note and in the payment of certain other indebtedness secured by said deed of trust, and have defaulted under the terms of said deed of trust and said promissory note; and

Whereas, the said Clifford S. Allred, as such beneficiary, did heretofore and pursuant to statute in such case made and provided, on the 24th day of May, 1928, record in the office of the County Recorder of County of San Mateo, State of California, in Vol. 356, Official Records, at page 260, his notice of default and breach of said grantors under the terms of said deed of trust and notice of his election to sell or cause to be sold the said real property, reference to which said notice and the record thereof is hereby made; and

Whereas, the said beneficiary has requested and authorized the undersigned trustee to sell the property described in said deed of trust and hereinabove described for the purpose of satisfying the said indebtedness of Daniel A. Slevin and Constantina D. Slevin, his wife;

Now, therefore, pursuant to said notice and demand, and in accordance with the terms and under the authority of said deed of trust, the undersigned trustee hereby gives notice that default has been made in the payment of the principal and interest of said note and in the payment of the indebtedness secured by said deed of trust, and that three (3) months have elapsed since the said recording of said notice, and that on TUESDAY, the 25th day of September, 1928, at the hour of 10:10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at the front entrance to the City Hall in the City of Daly City, County of San Mateo, State of California, said trustee will sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, the hereinabove described real property or such portion thereof as it may in its discretion deem necessary to sell in order to accomplish the objects of the trust in said deed of trust provided.

All bids and payments shall be made in gold coin of the United States of America at the time of said sale.

The beneficiary under said deed of trust or any other person may purchase at said sale.

Dated August 25th, 1928.

Mrs. Hemans' Poem Had Foundation in Fact

Mrs. Hemans' poem, "The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck," which thrilled the imagination of childhood for two generations, had its origin in an actual happening that constitutes a page in history. It was while Napoleon's expedition to Egypt was in progress that the English sent Lord Nelson, the sea's most famous warrior, to annihilate the fleet. This Nelson so nearly accomplished that only four of the French vessels escaped sinking or capture.

A bullet had ended the life of the French admiral, and the flagship was wrapped in flames. But Louis Casablanca, the captain, who was wounded so badly that he could keep his feet only by clinging desperately to the rail, stoutly refused to leave his post.

All who could get into a boat or swim had deserted the flagship and its heroic captain, with the solitary exception of a boy of ten—his son. The lad had hidden behind a coil of rope until the last boat had gone, then he went to his father's side. Commands and entreaties were of no avail; the boy remained, supporting the wounded man with an arm about his waist. The English sailors forgot the lust of battle, checked their fire, and cheered, and some of them wept as the enemy ship settled lower in the water and finally disappeared beneath the waves.—Detroit News.

Great Heat Required to Consume Diamond

Although diamonds are among the hardest substances known, they are composed of carbon, and if heated sufficiently in air they will burn.

"Diamonds," says a geologist, "are stated in all authoritative works to be unaffected by heat except at very high temperature (800 degrees Centigrade) such as one would not expect in an ordinary burning building. But it must not be forgotten that in some extensive conflagrations such temperatures may be reached."

A diamond expert says if diamonds are exposed to fire in contact with air and great heat they will be destroyed.

"Diamonds," he says, "if heated and placed in oxygen will be entirely consumed. They are not likely to be cracked by heat, but the surface will gradually be eaten away, become corroded, becoming white or gray, and if exposed long enough they will be entirely consumed."

Cuban Independence

Cuba is an independent republic. She attained her independence of Spain by the treaty of Paris, December 1, 1898, which ended the Spanish-American war. A constitution was adopted in 1901. The congress of the United States authorized the President to hand over the government to the Cuban people on the condition that the so-called Platt amendment adopted by congress March 2, 1901, be accepted. This amendment provided that the Cuban republic should never enter into any compact with a foreign power that would impair her independence; that she would contract no excessive debts, and that the Cuban government carry out certain plans for the welfare of the island.

Instructing the Blind

The first thought and purpose of building up special institutions for the instruction of the blind seem to have occurred to benevolent persons in New England, New York and Pennsylvania almost simultaneously. The New York Institution for the Blind was incorporated April 22, 1831. On March 15, 1832, Dr. John D. Russ began the education of three pupils. The progress of the school was at first slow for want of an efficient head to direct its affairs. The Pennsylvania Institution, which is now one of the foremost in the world, was founded in 1833. Subsequently other schools were opened in the various states.

Place in the Sun

Taking it literally, Kaiser Wilhelm's figurative phrase, "a place in the sun," describes the United States. Since the acquisition of outlying dependencies after the Spanish-American war, it has always been daytime somewhere under the Stars and Stripes. And surveys have now been far enough completed to indicate that even in our territory within North America it is always sun-up. When the sun is setting at Attu, the farthest of the Aleutians, it is also rising in Maine at Eastport and Grand Manan.

Pean of Wanderlust

Sing a song of highways off afar; rhythm of the heavens, tree and earth and car; madrigal of motor, wheel and wind and man, living life the fullest mortal ever can. . . .

Sing us not of airways—they've grown workaday: Praise for the state routes on enchantment's way, and the lanes of backwoods, green and brown amass. . . . Oh, to be a gypsy—"Fill 'er up with gas!"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Mediterranean's Formation

Geologists believe that the Mediterranean sea is all that remains of a great ocean, which at an early glacial epoch, before the formation of the Atlantic ocean, encircled half the globe along a line of latitude. The extent of this ocean diminished gradually during the various eras until at present the Mediterranean is all that is left.

LEADERS TO CONFER ON ROAD PROBLEMS

Highway leaders of Northern and Central California will confer on a number of important highway development problems affecting California and other Western states, and the subject of routing and directing motor travel to this territory, at a meeting to be held in San Francisco on Tuesday, September 11. The conference was called by H. J. Brunner, president of the California State Automobile Association, who announces that 150 leading men of affairs interested in improvement and extension of tourist routes and promotion of motor tourist travel have been invited to attend the sessions which will be held in the St. Francis Hotel.

Direction of transcontinental motor travel to Northern and Central California will have a prominent part in the conference discussions, Brunner stated, explaining that a program for drawing tourist travel to this territory, recently inaugurated by the Automobile Association, has produced gratifying results. Plans for extension of the scope of these activities will be mapped, he said.

The conference will discuss highway development problems with particular attention to motor routes traversing the West and leading to Northern and Central California.

"California has a vital interest in road problems of other Western states," said Brunner. "One such problem is that of securing legislation to permit the federal government to build highways across unappropriated public lands. Since the veto of such a measure following the last session of Congress, new developments have arisen which indicate it may be advisable to reopen the subject."

"A problem of recent origin is that of the condition of transcontinental highways leading to California. Improvements of these routes has brought increased travel, and gravel surfaces in many sections have not been capable of sustaining the heavy traffic. Means must be found for protecting these gravel-surfaced roads, probably by the application of oil, a method now extensively used in California."

The conference of highway leaders will precede by a week a meeting in San Francisco of American Automobile Association executives with officials of the California State Automobile Association and other western motoring clubs affiliated with the nation-wide motorists' organization. The program of western highway needs with respect to federal action and legislation, mapped by the highway leaders' conference, will be presented to the A. A. A. executives for their support before Congress.

LARGER APPROPRIATIONS TO ROADS THAN SCHOOLS

The extension work of the Federal government in the field of rural education costs approximately one-tenth the amount advanced for Federal aid in road building, according to an estimate by C. W. Warburton, director of extension work, department of agriculture.

Dr. Warburton explained that each state and Hawaii now receives $30,000 annually without requirement that the state match this sum with additional appropriations. The remainder of the fund is divided among the states in proportion to the rural population, and with the added proviso that the state must provide an equal amount of money for extension work in order to qualify for the appropriation. (Total sum provided for the extension work by Federal government is about $7,000,000.) Actually the states, on the average, do much more than match Federal funds. For the current year state appropriations were nearly double Federal appropriations.

Comparing the expenditures for extension work with other activities, Director Warburton noted that the government spent approximately ten times as much in aid of roads. Extension activities cost at the rate of about $1 for each three persons on farms, or about 7 cents per capita for the whole population. This amounts to one-twentieth of the value of farm equipment purchased in 1927, and to about one-fifth of one per cent of the value of last year's crop.

TELEPHONE A NECESSITY

The people of the United States look upon the telephone as a household necessity. As a result no other nation has telephone service comparable to ours.

There are as many telephones in the single state of New York as in the whole of Great Britain and North Ireland. There are twice as many telephones in the United States as in all the countries of Europe.

The telephone began in the United States and, due to American engineering and executive genius, vision and enterprise, has shown its greatest development here.

GENERAL PERSHING WILL ATTEND LEGION CONVENTION

General John J. Pershing, commander of the American army in the World war and honorary commander of the American Legion, will attend the coming national convention of the World war veterans' organization at San Antonio next month, according to word received by State Commander Frank N. Belgrano of the Legion. General Pershing will make one of the principal addresses of the convention.

THE RETURN OF ANTHONY TRENT

By WYNTHAM MARTYN

Both Sutton and she were surrounded with evening papers. Mrs. Kinney, on her shopping expedition, had been started to see her beloved master occupying his position of unusual eminence.

Mademoiselle Dupin was now as beautiful as ever the "Countess" had been. Trent's heart warmed towards Mrs. Kinney and her taste in dress. The housekeeper had carried out her instructions admirably.

Trent was kept busy for an hour in answering questions about the exploit of the past night and supplementing the newspaper stories.

"What do they make of my disappearance?" Mademoiselle Dupin asked later in the evening.

"I haven't heard a mention of it. There was a lot of uneasiness they had to conceal. Those mysterious letters were most upsetting."

"They worked, then?" Sutton demanded.

"They drove him almost frantic with fear. He hated to be alone. He gave up golf. He drank by day and took drugs at night. One evening he came very near to telling me what was on his mind. He'll tell yet, for the reason that I am breaking down his morale."

"What good would a confession do if it were forced from a man not sober?" the "Countess" exclaimed.

"When the time comes," Trent told her, "he will be sober and in full possession of his senses. And I shall not force a confession from him; he will beg for the opportunity to make it. I suppose no plot is original when it comes down to it, but my scheme won't seem hackneyed when Grant sees it, and the whole story is written for him."

Trent did not get the opportunity to speak alone with Mademoiselle Dupin until Sutton, proud of the new accomplishment of making Welsh rarebits which Mrs. Kinney had taught him, went to prepare some as proof of his boasted skill.

"Tell me," she began abruptly, "why did you take such a risk in seizing that ship when you could have caught Pierre in the gardens?"

"Several reasons," he said. The idea of bringing the steamer back to the very place Redlich thought never to see again appealed to me. That was one reason. Another was that I thought he would be conveyed down that path to the sea. He had already been assaulted by an unknown man there. I assumed he would take these elementary precautions. What chance had I against three or four of those cutthroats I saw in court this morning? Absolutely none at all. I should have been knocked out or killed, and he would have got away with the jewels, and if he had, you would never have felt safe. There wasn't as much danger as you think."

"But it was more risky than if you had captured him in the garden," she insisted. "Why did you do it?"

"I suppose it's vanity if you analyze it," he returned; "but if I shared an adventure like this with anyone else, I should only get 50 per cent of the thrill. I have always played games like this alone. You'll admit it was better to get the ship and the crew? I've no doubt that a lot more missing property will be found about. They were searching it when I left Deal."

"How I should like to see it," she explained.

"There's no reason why you shouldn't," he said. "I can rent a launch at Dykeman street with a couple of men to run her, and we can creep right along the shore and see everything. You can wear a veil, and when you're off Deal you can see everything through the windows of the little cabin. I've used the launch before. The owner knows me, and I don't think there's any danger. I wish I dare take Captain Sutton, but they're too hot on his trail to make it worth while. Meanwhile, he comes with those things which banish sleep."

"I don't want to be flattered," said Sutton, with the modesty of a man who knows his own worth, "but just tell me what you think of these. Mrs. Kinney refuses them solely on the grounds that her teeth are artificial and insecurely anchored."

"In the trenches," Trent said, trying one, "men would have fought for them."

"Do you know," Sutton said ingenuously, "I used to think they were difficult to make. They're simple and they're interesting."

Trent was delighted to find that Sutton had lost much of his gloominess and depression. It chanced he was passionately fond of music and had no idea, before meeting Mademoiselle Dupin, that he liked the classics. She played a great deal of the modern Russian school.

Presently Sutton found himself describing his motion picture adventures in Fort Lee. He told his hearers how sets were built, and of the illusions created for effects.

"I've talked for an hour," he said apologetically, "and we might have been having some music. Why didn't you stop me, Trent? You've been bored to death."

"I've enjoyed listening," Trent assured him. "I must get back to my lonely luxury on the fashionable side of the Park now. By the way," he added, turning to Mademoiselle Dupin, "that excursion will have to be put off for a day. Weld is lunching with me tomorrow, and it's business, although he doesn't know it yet."

"What time shall I be ready?"
"I'll call for you at nine," he said.

Weld was very glad to see Anthony Trent. He was leaving for the family summer home at Prides' Crossing next day. He rarely stayed in the city during the hot months. Trent knew very well that a roof garden goddess was the present attraction. Weld admired her in his detached, superior way, but was not heartbroken at learning that she had accepted an offer to star in a picture about to be made in Hollywood.

"There's nothing to keep me in town now she's going to California," said Swithin Weld, "so I'll run off to the north shore."

"I thought you were going to that Adirondack camp to fish?"
"My mother is in a forgiving mood," said Weld, "and I have been extra-agant. If you want the camp, let me know and you're welcome."

"I hoped you'd go, too," Trent said. Weld's Massachusetts trip was disastrous to the success of his scheme.

Sooner or later he had determined to take Smithin Weld into his confidence. He took the sudden resolve to do so now in this quiet corner of a restaurant little patronized during summer.

Weld was a slim, blonde man, with belligerent blue eyes and a little fair mustache. He liked few people and made no secret of his prejudices. In the war he had done brilliantly, and was turned into sullen anger when his family would not allow him to remain in that branch of the service. If he could not work as he chose he would not work at all. Trent knew he was dissatisfied and judged, shrewdly, that he would join in any adventure which could be undertaken without undue risk of the law's penalties.

Trent had his triumphs in Weld's unqualified admiration for the exploits which were still the main theme of the morning papers.

"I'd give an ear for the chance to get into that sort of thing," he reiterated. "Nothing ever happens where I am."

"You've to seek adventures," Trent said slowly. "I've had a great many, and I've sought them all. That relation of yours, Mrs. George Bixel, said you wondered why I bothered with the Grants."

"She shouldn't have repeated it," he said, flushing. "It was no business of mine, but I thought it must seem awfully slow and tame there. But now I've read the papers I see why you went."

"No, you don't," Trent told him. He leaned over the table and looked close at his friend. "I did go for a very unusual reason, and one the Grants have no idea of."

Weld spoke with a little hesitation. "You give me the impression that you don't like the Grants."

"I loathe them both," Trent said.

Metals Made Use of as Writing Materials

The earliest legible handwriting on paper in existence is a letter from the wife of a government official, complaining that her husband "is wrecking his career by dissipation." This letter dates back 1,500 years. Metals were used frequently in place of paper as writing material in early times. The ruler of Kandi once sent an embassy to the Dutch governor of Pulicat. The embassy took along credentials inscribed on a plate of gold. It is on record that a book at Rome was made of marble cut so finely that the leaves could be turned over. Another book bought in the same city was four inches long, three inches broad, and the pages were all lead. The pages of some of the books used in the Middle Ages also were made of lead. The laws of Greece were inscribed on brass and those of Rome on slabs of brass ivory and wood. The state records of the ancient

"I have never before gone to any man's house and enjoyed his hospitality with the definite idea of doing him a bad turn. But that's just what I did at Deal Beach. I went there because I've sworn to put Payson Grant behind prison bars."

"What's he done?" Weld asked excitedly. He felt vaguely that he was near an adventure.

"This is not the time to tell you," Trent said. A waiter was hovering about the next table. "But when I do you'll do what I ask."

"What's that?"
"It isn't a one-man job," Trent returned. "I shall want several props, and that camp of yours for a week."

"It's yours," Weld exclaimed. "Can't I be in on it?"

"How long will you be at Prides' Crossing?"
"Not more than two weeks. That's about my annual limit. I'll cut it short if you like."

"That suits me all right. By the time you leave I shall have everything in readiness. This is what I want you to do. Go to the camp and send a wire to me at the Grants' place at Deal Beach. I'm going back there for a week. Ask me to come up for a few days. I shall wire back asking if I may bring Payson Grant because he's sick and the change will do him good."

"Right!" Weld exclaimed. "I'll do it. What date shall I send that wire?"

"As early on the fifteenth as you like. What sort of a place is the camp?"

"It's a big old place," Weld said. "with a smaller camp for the help. There must be twenty rooms in it. Really it belongs to my uncle, but I call it mine. It's miles from everywhere."

"It wouldn't be hard to hide two men I must bring with me?"
"Not unless Grant insists on exploring the old shack."

"I'll swear he won't do that. He won't venture to do any sort of exploring. It's not fair to keep you in ignorance, but I'm not yet certain how the thing is to be worked. Trust me till I get up there, will you?"

"You bet I will," Weld said heartily. Swithin Weld went off feeling pleasantly excited. He could endure two weeks of the north shore all the better for what was coming after.

Anthony Trent walked westward until he came to that block on Forty-sixth street where so many motion picture concerns flourish. From the address on an envelope he discovered that the "Horace Weems Productions" was situated in a large building on the south side of the street.

This Horace Weems had been at Dartmouth with him and had left without graduating. Weems was of that ebullient salesman type who has either just made a fortune or is about to do so. Once he had cleaned up a quarter-million in steel, and was for patronizing the college mate he admired. Then a market crash had cleaned him out and since then Trent had loaned him varying sums of money.

His card brought Weems scurrying out. Weems was always overweight and inevitably perspiring. He looked at Trent a moment and then rushed back, shouting loudly, "Hey, girls, this is the guy I said I knew!"

Weems returned with two pretty girls, whom he introduced as the lead and heavy in his celebrated two-reel comedies. Weems was ever a fluent talker, and he ran over Trent's good points in the manner of a showman. "If you can't make a big noise yourself," was one of Weems' sayings, "grab somebody else's thunder." The Deal Beach episode had stirred him to rapture.

"We've got to take him to Fort Lee and show him what we're doing," Weems decided. "Got your auto?" he demanded.

"I can send for it," Trent told him. Weems looked at it enviously when it came. A man who could keep a car like this, a chauffeur in tivery, and stay with the Grants at Deal Beach must be highly prosperous. Weems took a sudden resolve. He was seated in a curious little bucket seat in the rear with the chauffeur who, Weems imagined, despised him.

"Anthony, my boy," he said leaning forward, "you're a full partner in the Horace Weems Productions. All assets and no liabilities!"

Bulgar Capital Plans to Enhance Beauty

Sofia is a small but beautiful city, one of the most charming in the Balkans. But not satisfied to rest on their laurels the Sofia city fathers are bent on improving the appearance of the Bulgar capital. A prize of about $15,000 has been set aside for the best plan. Foreigners as well as Bulgarians are permitted to compete. A series of parks and city buildings is contemplated. Italian engineers have already started to work on an elaborate scheme to bring water from the mountains. A long aqueduct, recalling old Roman construction, will form part of the new waterworks. Other Italian irrigation engineers are draining marshes.

Drives Away Hail

Storms With Gun

Joseph DiClaudio, one of the most successful farmers in the Winifred district, near Lewistown, Mont., has his own method of combating hail and, whatever may be said of it, it is certain that he has never had any loss.

Hail clouds drift low and, whenever one appears over his place, Mr. DiClaudio fires a barrage from his shotgun into it. The cloud, he says, seems to scatter as a result and he is convinced that he has saved his field more than once by this simple expedient.

He keeps his trusty shotgun with a dozen shells ready for a bombardment. —Minneapolis Journal.

Speed, But—

"Speed isn't everything," Edsel Ford, at a dinner in Dearborn, was talking about airplanes.

"If in any degree you sacrifice safety to speed you are more foolish than the Yorkshire drummer," he went on.

"The Yorkshire drummer bragged that he covered more customers in a given time than any man on the road. When he was asked how he did it he answered:

"Ah, pope 'ead in at door. 'Marnin', I says. 'Marnin,' says they. 'Owt?' says I. 'Nawt,' says they. 'Marnin', says I. 'Marnin', says they. And off I goes to t' next shop."

Average Californian

The average Californian probably isn't a Californian at all, but hails from Illinois, Missouri, or New York, according to figures of L. E. Ross, chief of the state's bureau of vital statistics. Only one-third of the present population of the state is native. Illinois leads all other states in populating the Golden State, having contributed 137,000 residents. Missouri has contributed 104,000 inhabitants; New York, 102,000; Ohio, 88,880; Iowa, 86,550, and Kansas, 62,850.

Shaving Statistics

When a man shaves his razor crosses his face at a speed of nearly thirty miles an hour. He may also cut through approximately 25,000 hairs. Details of this kind in the life of a safety razor blade are given in a London publication, the Engineer, by J. Ferdinand Kayser. He says that 25,000 hairs packed together would occupy about two and one-half square centimeters. The edge of a good blade does not on an average give more than ten clean shaves. Hence its useful cutting life is only fifty seconds.

Petrified Tree Identified

At Florissant, Colo., among other specimens there is a petrified tree stump 17½ feet in diameter and 10½ feet high. It has been pronounced by natural scientists that these trees, which have lain buried in a volcanic lava bed for thousands of years, come of the Redwood or Sequoia variety, such as now grow in California.

One-Sided Interview

"A reporter wishes to talk to you," said the secretary.

"He may have some valuable ideas," answered Senator Sorghum. "But I don't want to run the risk of having to complain that I was misquoted. I am glad to have him talk to me, but warn him against any publication to the effect that I have talked to him."

Avoid Perfect Work

Turkish women rug weavers make at least one mistake in every rug, fearing that if they should produce a perfect work the evil eye would cause their speedy death. Many produce only one rug in four years and earn about 30 cents a day.

OLD FOLKS SAY
DR. CALDWELL
WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice.

He treated constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination of senna and other mild herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle will last several months, and all can use it. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Elderly people find it ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

A DAY OF REST FOR THE WORKERS

On the first Monday in September of each year the hosts of labor celebrate their annual holiday, dedicated to those who toil. Last Monday the toilers of the nation celebrated. While primarily a day of parades and exercises by organized labor, the festivities were participated in largely by the general public and business was suspended to a considerable extent.

Labor day was first recognized by Congress in 1894, when an act was passed making it a holiday for the District of Columbia and for all Federal establishments throughout the United States. Prior to that time it had been made a legal holiday in twenty-seven states and one territory, and it is now so recognized in all states except Alabama and Washington, and even in these it is celebrated quite generally. The day is also observed in Canada.

One of the encouraging signs of the times is the better relations between capital and labor which have been developed during the past few years. These two great forces in our national life are coming more and more to realize that the interests of both are better promoted through co-operation than through antagonism.

American labor is the most productive in the world, as well as the best paid and best protected. Employers and the public have learned that prosperity for the workman contributes to the prosperity of all. The high achievements of those who perform the nation's every-day tasks are fittingly commemorated on Labor day.

A philanthropist will rehabilitate his native town of Pugwash, N. S. A new name would be an inexpensive improvement.

Present-day politicians are not rail-splitters like Lincoln, but they are experts in keeping the old fence in repair.

Telephone service,
a public trust

THE widespread ownership of the Bell Telephone System places an obligation on its management to guard the savings of its hundreds of thousands of stockholders.

Its responsibility for so large a part of the country's telephone service imposes an obligation that the service shall always be adequate, dependable and satisfactory to the user.

The only sound policy that will meet these obligations is to continue to furnish the best possible service at the lowest cost consistent with financial safety.

There is then in the Bell System no incentive to earn speculative or large profits. Earnings must be sufficient to assure the best possible service and the financial integrity of the business. Anything in excess of these requirements goes toward extending the service or keeping down the rates.

This is fundamental in the policy of the company.

The Bell System's ideal is the same as that of the public it serves—the most telephone service and the best, at the least cost to the user. It accepts its responsibility for a nation-wide telephone service as a public trust.

AIDING THE SCHOOLS

The idea that business men should not take an interest in the kind of text books pertaining to business which are used in the schools is not shared by the United States Bureau of Education, according to a recent official statement from that bureau.

Commending the activity of various groups of business men in co-operating with educational authorities, the Bureau of Education says:

"The kinds of co-operation have ranged from free exchange of ideas through conferences and literature, co-operative researches concerning various problems, co-operative guidance and training programs to the actual correction of errors in text books. In the past many text books for commercial subjects have been prepared by authors whose business experience, if any, was not sufficient to enable them to record accurately the practices in business.

"As a result of research, 4,500 corrections were made and reported to twenty-six publishers of the text. The responses from the authors and publishers have proved the worthiness of business men's efforts to put commercial education on a fact basis."

It is obvious that professors who have had no contact with actual business conditions are not equipped to prepare unaided suitable text books on business subjects. Many texts now in use are several years old and were probably very imperfect when written. Without the co-operation of practical business men it is impossible for the schools to keep abreast of the times in these subjects.

MONSTERS OF THE AIR

Bids were recently received by the Navy department for the construction of two monster dirigibles, to have a speed of 72 knots an hour and capable of cruising 10,000 miles without refueling. These airships will be about three and one-half times as large as the Los Angeles, and will have a capacity of 6,500 cubic feet, inflated by helium. They will cost about $4,000,000 each.

Among the bids received were those of three German firms, besides a half dozen or more American firms. It will take several weeks to analyze the bids, it is said, but construction will probably be begun within a few months, as $2,000,000 for commencing the work is now available.

While the building of these great airships may be considered a necessary addition to the nation's defensive equipment, the disasters which have overtaken such aircraft, even in time of peace, cause the layman to speculate on their probable length of life under war conditions.

The fate of the Shenandoah, which broke in three parts while battling with a storm on September 3, 1925, the recent Italia disaster, and dozens of others, illustrate the relative fragile nature of the dirigible when pitted against the fury of the elements, to say nothing of the dangers of war.

Whether the greater size of the proposed new Navy aircraft will add to or reduce the dangers attending their navigation remains to be seen.

CRIME IS ORGANIZED

From investigations by the National Crime Commission, it has been disclosed that a highly organized system of "fences," as receivers and disposers of stolen goods are called, handle more than $500,000,000 worth of loot each year. Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, who is chairman of the Commission, declares that the lone burglar is now a rarity, and that well organized gangs are plying their thieving trade along efficient business lines.

In order to do this they must have definite outlets for the property stolen. If these could be eliminated, Mr. Baker believes that the total thefts would be largely reduced. While police and other officers of the law are aware of this condition, and generally do what they can to break up these "fences," there is need for greater co-operation on the part of the public in keeping a lookout for places of this character and promptly reporting them to the authorities.

Losses suffered by the public from thefts, burglary and robbery almost equal the destruction by fire. If these losses are to be lessened there must be increased vigilance on the part of all citizens and a greater determination to aid in putting criminal gangs out of business.

WEED YIELDS RUBBER

Another promising development which will tend to free America from foreign domination in the rubber market is reported by the National Farm News Exchange, which gives an account of experiments with the Mexican guayule shrub, which is really a weed.

By crushing the whole shrub and mechanically and chemically processing the pulp, it is said that 14 to 16 per cent of the rubber, which meets all commercial tests, is obtained. The shrub is adapted to the arid regions of the southwestern United States, and takes four years to mature. It is estimated that about 400 pounds of rubber can be produced from an acre during a four year period.

Whether rubber production from this source would be economically feasible has not been fully demonstrated, but in any event the plan appears to have possibilities which might be of great advantage in guarding against future foreign monopoly.

Mrs. McElroy of California threw a rolling pin more than 100 feet in a contest. But Mr. McElroy is probably more interested in her accuracy than in her range.

First be sure you're wrong; then go into reverse.

SKINNING SUCKERS

An amusing incident is reported from the New York custom house, where a wealthy American sought to bring from Europe a shipment of "antique" furniture under the duty free provisions of the tariff law.

Government appraisers questioned the genuineness of the furniture and assessed the regular duty. The owner protested and had experts called to give their opinions as to whether the furniture was more than 100 years old, as had been represented by European dealers. These experts agreed with the government officials that the furniture was less than twenty-five years old. Thus the "easy" purchaser found that he had been swindled and had to pay the duty besides.

This illustrates the gullibility of many Americans who ransack Europe for "antiques," often paying fabulous prices for stuff that has been manufactured expressly for this sucker trade.

Savage people have great veneration for their tribal laws, which is one indication that Americans are not savages.

Miss O. Ottoboni, of Lawndale, has returned from a motor trip to Yosemite Valley. She was accompanied by her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. B. Ottoboni. They also visited at Stockton with Mrs. Carlotta Gianelli, girlhood chum of Mrs. Ottoboni.

Miss Bessie Hulten, of San Francisco, was a dinner guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Wall, on Bellevue avenue, on Thursday evening of last week. Miss Hulten is president of Twin Peaks Parlor, N. D. G. W., and has many friends throughout this community.

Madeline Fellows, Elsie Forsell, Marge O'Connor, Esther Forsell and Lorraine Wall, committee from El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, N. D. G. W., motored to Redwood City to attend a joint meeting with the Native Daughters Parlor from Redwood and Menlo Park, to make final arrangements for the September 9th celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Fischer had a party of friends spend the week end two weeks ago at their summer home, Los Sobre Olas, at Capitola by the Sea. The party included the Misses Marge and Tessie O'Connor, Audrey Diamond, Bobbie Heagney, Frances Brown, Messrs. Nick Schoplein, Louis Ehling, Frank Ferguson, Louis Alviso, Walter Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Al Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Fischer and Baby Sylvia.

Mrs. James Packwood, of Burlingame, nee Estelle Atkinson, the youngest daughter of Mrs. Lizzie Atkinson, of Colma, underwent an operation at St. Luke's hospital on last Tuesday morning, having her appendix removed. Mrs. Packwood, who is a teacher in the Crocker school in Daly City, is very popular in this community and has the best wishes of her numerous friends for a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Kennedy, of Crocker Tract, were hosts at a house party at Rio Nido over the holidays. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Fischer and baby daughter Sylvia; Margie O'Connor, Roberta Hagney, Tessie O'Connor, Audrey Diamond, Elsie Fahy, Frances Smith, Frankie Ferguson, W. Walter, Louis Ahling, Nick Schoplein, Roy Thompson, John Schoplein and Louis Virezio.

The members of the drill team of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, have been drilling on Tuesday and Friday evenings at the Civic Auditorium, San Francisco, making final preparations for the September 9th celebration, which will be held this year at Oakland. The drill team members have made their reservations for the 9th at the Hotel Oakland. On account of the 9th falling on Sunday, the big celebration and parade will be held on Monday, September 10.

On Wednesday evening of last week a stag party was given in honor of Miss Tessie O'Connor's twenty-first birthday at her home, 599 Evergreen avenue, by her many girl friends. The dining room and table were beautifully decorated for the occasion, and Miss O'Connor received many lovely gifts. Those who had a most enjoyable evening, and one long to be remembered, were Audrey Diamond, Marge Kennedy, Bobbie Heagney, Colista Dalton, Ernie Klaum, Elsie Fahy, Marge O'Connor, Julia Hanke, Kittie Breuse, Lucille Swanson, Ruby O'Connor, Sylvia Fischer, Elsie Levin, Helen King, Frances Fricke, Tessie O'Connor and Mrs. Helena O'Connor.

The members of La Fiesta Social Club were entertained recently at the home of Mrs. Marge Kennedy, on Frankfort street. After the regular business meeting, conducted by Elsie Fahy, president, and Marge O'Connor, secretary, the members had a most enjoyable evening. Miss Laura Figone accompanied on the piano and the Misses Audrey Diamond and Tessie O'Connor gave songs and entertained the members, after which the hostesses, Mrs. Kennedy and Miss Fahy, served dainty refreshments. Those who enjoyed the evening were Sylvia Fischer, Christine Hume, Florence McKendrick, Lorraine Wall, Marge O'Connor, Audrey Diamond, Bobbie Heagney, Edna Boyle, Tessie O'Connor, Annette Lucey, Laura Figone, Colista Dalton, Elsie Fahy and Marge Kennedy. As the treasurer, Florence McKendrick, reported a very good amount in the social fund, the young ladies are planning an outing.

TELEPHONE FACILITIES FOR PRESIDENT'S CAMP

In order to insure President Coolidge the greatest privacy during his vacation this summer near Brule, Wis., only telephone lines were run to the lodge. Telegraph lines were not extended to the lodge, but reach only to Brule, six miles away. Fifteen telephone wires connected Superior and Brule with outside points and a private board telephone exchange was established in the Superior Central high school, which was selected as the "Summer Capital."

ABOUT WOMEN

Miss Molly Gourney of England won the woman's golf championship of France recently in a tournament at Chantilly, France.

Miss Betty Shimon of Milwaukee is the only woman operator on the butter and egg market in the Chicago mercantile exchange, and her business exceeds $4,000,000 annually.

Mrs. Arthur Robinson of Oyen, Alta., only 37 years old, has had 20 children, including five sets of twins.

Miss Emma Brown, aged 76, has worked 60 years as a clerk in a London store without being absent a day.

Miss Marin Montgomery of Hubbard Woods, Ill., is the second person and the first woman to scale the highest peak of the Canadian Rockies.

Lady Helen Thoburn, of Oak Park, Ill., after eight years of association work in Shanghai, is back in the United States and will become secretary of international board of the Young Women's Christian Association in New York.

Mrs. Lelia Morris of McConnellsville, O., who has been blind for 15 years, has written 1,500 hymns, many of which are being used in the churches today.

Mrs. Anna Hakanson of Tacoma, Washington, recently celebrated her 98th birthday by taking a half-hour jaunt in the air over Seattle.

Miss Mary Washburn of New York, who holds the American college women's record for the 60-yard hurdles, has competed in basketball and swimming and was runner up in the national 40-yard sprint championship in Boston recently.

There are now 11 women sheriffs holding office in Kentucky.

Miss Vaung Tisen Bang, born in Shanghai, is now an associate editor of the Syracuse, N. Y., Herald. Her purpose is to get experience that will aid her in establishing an English paper in Shanghai.

Miss Jewell Russell made the highest marks among 110 law school graduates at the Oklahoma bar examination in Tulsa recently.

Miss Ethel Catherwood of Canada won the world's high jump championship at the Olympic games.

BOYS AND GIRLS

Percy Williams, Canadian school boy, defeated the world's greatest sprinters in the Olympic 100 meters final at Amsterdam in 10.45 seconds.

William C. Piggott, Mobile schoolboy, swam Mobile Bay in 9 hours and 40 minutes, which is a new record.

Stanley Goldberg, 23 months old, has won the loving cup in the annual baby contest at Sea Side Park, Coney Island, New York.

Gordon and Everett Gravenhorst, schoolboys, of Brooklyn, N. Y., have made a pair of microscopic diamonds from an old stick of carbon.

Sara Morriss, 15 years old of Talladega, Ala., won first prize and a trip to Memphis for writing the best essay submitted in the Alabama Farm Bureau contest.

Marion Williams, 17, of Paducah, Ky., has been appointed a staff colonel by Gov. F. D. Sampson because of her activity in aiding the work of farm boys and girls.

Twelve-year-old Dorothy McDonough, of O'Neill, Neb., is believed to be the youngest private secretary and office stenographer in the world.

Dorothy Brock, 8 years old, of Spartansburg, N. C., has undergone a successful operation to have a tooth that she had swallowed some time ago removed from her lung.

Boyd Jones, 14-year-old boy of Gallup, N. M., rode 1,600 miles to deliver an invitation to President Coolidge at the summer White House.

Patricia Houlihan, 8-year-old Seattle girl, has organized a junior humane society for the protection of dogs.

Carmela Yull, 15 years old, is the only girl playing baseball with the West Side Rangers of Chelsea Park, New York.

The most provoking husband is one who talks indistinctly in his sleep.

SOMETHING NEW

An improved stop watch has been designed for athletic events which will time contests to one twenty-fifth of a second.

A Japanese scientist has developed electrical apparatus to warn of earthquakes by translating their preliminary tremors into sounds.

A new electric lamp with very slender filaments of aluminum has a highly destructive action on cultures of micro-organisms.

A new apparatus for telephoning and telegraphing by wireless to an airplane in flight, has been tested in France.

A Baltimore signal engineer has devised a control for traffic lights that can be operated by an automobile horn's sound waves.

A Swedish engineer has invented a device that records incoming telephone calls, repeating them later for the person for whom they are intended.

Made in the form of flashlights, cartridges to be loaded into firearms to shoot beams of light at targets have been invented in England.

A new type of oxygen has been developed that is impervious to water as well as smoke.

An airplane engineer in France is working on a small motor to assist skiers back uphill after their jumps.

James R. Harrison, aged 74 years, of Peoria, Ill., is the inventor of a new type of grain weigher, which operates by volume rather than weight.

A new style altimeter has been developed by the United States Air Corps which records the distance above ground instead of above sea level.

Thomas A. Edison, who for months has been experimenting in extracting rubber from weeds, claims the manufacture of domestic rubber will soon be a reality.

So sensitive is a powerful pneumatic apparatus developed in England that a small child can strike a key and swing a bell-clapper weighing 336 pounds or more.

A new "gas-steam" locomotive is being tested on railroads in England.

THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER

J. C. Holton, Mississippi state commissioner of agriculture, recently paid a worth-while tribute to newspapers that expresses graphically the general public feeling for the press. "I have always appreciated the power of the press, more especially the 'country' press," said Mr. Holton. "The home papers carry the home news, and are read from cover to cover by those whose first interest is in home affairs. They reach the people and constitute a powerful influence of public sentiment."

"A wonderful factor for good is the country newspaper; worthy of the pride and support of folks at home, an avenue of commercial entrance to those who would sell their goods to our people. CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

A through air service between San Diego and Vancouver, B. C., will begin this week as a result of an agreement reached between officials of the Union Air Lines, Inc., the Maddux Air Lines and the Pickwick Airways of Los Angeles, it was announced. More than 1,000 offices and ticket agencies along the coast will handle reservations for the trip.

The Women Lawyers' Club of Los Angeles filed articles of incorporation with Secretary of State Jordan last week. The club was formed for the "advancement of the legal profession and for the general promotion of women along educational lines," the article stated. Peggy Halloran was named as the president.

Believed to be the oldest building in Lindsay and known to be its first post office and general store, the frame structure at the corner of Honolulu and Mt. The common fluency of speech in many men and most women is owing to a scarcity of matter, and a mastery of language, and hath a mind full of ideas, will be apt in speaking to hesitate upon the choice of both; whereas common speakers have only one set of ideas, and one set of words to clothe them in; and these are always ready at the mouth; so people come faster out of a church when it is almost empty, than when a crowd is at the door.—Jonathan Swift.

GREEN PEAS

There is no vegetable so well liked and often served from June until the last crop is frost bitten than peas. One may buy a fine variety canned, but the sweet, fresh vegetable, cooked in very little water and served with a pinch of sugar, salt, pepper and a little butter or cream is always enjoyed.

Shrimp Wiggle.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, a few grains of pepper and when smooth one cupful of milk added slowly. Stir and cook until the mixture is thick. Remove the intestinal veins from the shrimps and break into pieces. Add the sauce with one cupful of cooked peas and serve on toast. Chicken, salmon and other meat or fish may be used in place of shrimps.

Peas With Onions.—Cut two slices of bacon into squares and put into a saucepan with four button onions peeled and halved; cook, shaking the pan until the bacon is crisp. Add one tablespoonful of flour, mix until smooth, then add one cupful of stock or water and cook ten minutes. Add one pint of fresh peas, season with salt and pepper. Cook until the vegetables are tender.

Peas Souffle.—Take four tablespoonfuls of butter, add four tablespoonfuls of flour; when well blended and cooked add one cupful of milk and cook until the mixture boils and is well cooked. Add one cupful of cooked mashed peas, the yolks of three eggs well beaten, one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper and a few drops of lemon juice. Fold in the beaten whites and put into a well-buttered baking dish. Set in a pan of water and bake until firm.

Spanish Meat Dish.—Put thinly sliced potatoes into a buttered baking dish, cover with a sprinkling of thinly sliced onion, then add any leftover meat, cold roast of beef, with any gravy left, add one cupful of tomato or more to moisten the dish, and bake until the potatoes are tender. Just before serving sprinkle the top of the dish with a half cupful more or less of cooked peas. Serve from the dish.

Ice-Box Cookies.

We never grow too old or staid to enjoy the old-fashioned rolled cookies; but in these days so full of so many things to do, we are glad to have the cookies made in a few moments, placed in the ice chest and baked in the early morning.

Chocolate Cookies.—Cream one-half cupful of shortening, add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, one egg well beaten, one-half teaspoonful of salt and two squares of chocolate melted. Beat well and add alternately one-fourth cupful of milk and two and one-half cupfuls of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Make into rolls. Chill and bake in the morning.

Butterscotch Cookies.—Soften but do not melt one cupful of good shortening. Add four cupfuls of brown sugar, four well-beaten eggs, about seven cupfuls of flour sifted with one-half teaspoonful of soda and one teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Add one tablespoonful of vanilla. Mix, using the hands if necessary. Make into rolls and place on a tray or board and let stand in the ice chest over night. Cut into thin slices and bake in a quick oven about six minutes.

Fruit Cookies.—Mix five quarts of flour, one teaspoonful of salt, two quarts of brown sugar, one tablespoonful each of cloves and cinnamon, the grated rind of two lemons, one-half pound of candied orange peel, one-fourth pound of candied citron finely sliced and two pounds of chopped almonds. Mix the following: One pound of butter and one pound of any good sweet fat melted, one cupful of cream, five teaspoonfuls of soda dissolved in one-half cupful of hot water and four beaten eggs. Combine the mixtures. Roll and place on ice. In the morning slice into thin slices and bake in a moderate oven. These cookies will keep a year.

Peanut and Almond Cookies.—To one cupful of softened shortening add one cupful each of brown and white sugar. Add three well-beaten eggs, one pound of roasted, shelled and chopped peanuts or half a pound of shredded almonds; five cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of soda, one teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of cinnamon. Make into rolls and chill. Slice and bake.

RENE LACOSTE TO QUIT TENNIS GAME

Not a Fancy Player, but Is Consistent.

Five years ago Rene Lacoste walked up to his father and said: "Let me play tennis for five years. I will become champion of the world and then quit and devote myself to business."

He did. And now Lacoste has said he will keep the promise he made back in 1923. He does not intend to come to the United States to defend his national singles championship.

His defeat by Big Bill Tilden in Davis Cup play may cause him to change his mind, however. If Lacoste were still on top of the heap he would be more inclined to abandon his crown. But in the face of Tilden's triumph such an act is doubtful.

Lacoste is not a gallery player. He is totally lacking in that elusive stuff called color, for he makes the most difficult shots seem ridiculously easy. The Frenchman is the closest approach to the perfect mechanical tennis player the world has ever seen.

On the court he seems to be made of springs and steel. Short, swarthy, wiry, he skims across the court like an auto-ratic doll. His facial expression never changes. He has even more of a "poker face" than Helen Wills.

Faultless baseline play is the secret of Lacoste's success. There is none of Cochet's beautiful wrist work in Lacoste's game; none of Borotra's furious forays to the net. At times Lacoste appears awkward when making a return, but the ball always streaks back across the net, usually to nick the baseline for a point.

Lacoste broke the stout heart of Tilden in the finals of the National tournament last year. Twice the American was within one point of winning a set when Lacoste sent the ball past him like a rocket. Each time the ball splashed squarely into the white line of the sideline. Tilden never had a chance after that. The psychological effect of Lacoste's stolid, consistent game is a powerful factor in his victories. Opponents begin to feel that they are battling against a machine and their cause is hopeless.

Long before Lacoste lost to Tilden the former was beaten by George Lott, when the American youngster found a flaw in the great Frenchman's armor.

It was typical of Lacoste that the next day he began working on his net game and now has mastered it.

For a while last year Lacoste found human competition so bad that he invented a machine which he played against. He placed this contraption, which looked like a small cannon, on one side of the net. Some one would pull a string and the cannon would shoot a tennis ball across at Lacoste at the speed of a bullet. For days he volleyed against the machine, and then the sport began to lose its zest.

Lacoste began beating the machine.

Some Courses Lucky for Various Golf Champions

It is peculiar how players seem to be inspired by certain golf courses. Bob Jones always plays well at Merion, while Willie Macfarlane never was better than when battling around Shawnee. The scholarly Scot has won the Shawnee meet several times. Armour likes Oakmont, while Hagen usually scores well on Chicago courses and at Westchester-Biltmore.

Although he has been unable to win further titles since capturing the National championship, Johnny Farrell has been scoring well enough to remain one of the leading medalists of the country. Including his play in several winter events, John has an average of slightly more than 72½ strokes per round. Mac Smith has a fractional lead on the Quaker Ridge star and has played almost as many rounds. Yet Smith has been able to land among the winners only a few times since last winter. Diegel, Sarazen and Al Espinosa are other leading scorers; and the difference between the first 20 is scarcely two strokes. Which shows that margin separating a champion and the contesting field in golf is smaller than in any other sport.

THE BEARS

"Tell me," said the Grizzly to the Brown Bear, "you look quite like a bear from this country. Did you come from this land?"

"No, Europe was my home. By the way, have you ever been abroad?" answered Mrs. Brown Bear.

"Abroad where?" asked the Grizzly, much puzzled. "Do you mean to ask me if I have ever been abroad at night, hunting, seeking, traveling?"

"Oh, no," said Mrs. Brown Bear, "I mean, in Europe. When I speak of abroad I mean abroad—off—on the other side of the ocean."

"No," said the Grizzly, "I've never been there."

"Well, it's my home," said Mrs. Brown Bear, "but I like it here. Although I look as though I were a bear belonging to this continent I am not."

"But I like it here so well that I ask to have beautiful cubs come to enjoy it, too."

"I've had several handsome sets of children."

"You speak as though you were talking of China and that when one set broke you got another," said the Grizzly.

"Not at all," said Mrs. Brown Bear. "I mean that I have had several different sets of children, but not because one of the sets or two of the sets were broken, or because the children broke.

"Such a thing didn't happen. I didn't mean that."

"No, indeed, that didn't happen. But I like it here so much that I like to have the little ones enjoy it, too."

"If I didn't like it I wouldn't welcome them here, for I care for little bear cubs and wouldn't have them anywhere if it wasn't nice."

"I see," said the Grizzly. "Well, you're a good zoo bear for you like it and attend to your business and look after your children, and are a great addition to the zoo."

"Thank you," said Mrs. Brown Bear.

"Woof, woof, growl, growl, you pay me a great compliment, and I thank you for it, woof, woof, growl, growl."

"You're welcome," said the Grizzly. "I don't think, though, that I would care about going to Europe."

"I'm not one for sight-seeing. That is—not the kind of sight-seeing that might be expected of me if I go to Europe."

"I like to see everything in the woods—food to eat, lovely quiet and wild, lonely surroundings."

"Ah no, I wouldn't care to travel abroad as you call it."

"Well, I must have a nap now. Good afternoon, woof, woof, growl, growl," said Mrs. Brown Bear.

RIDDLES

What does a kettle suffer from most? Boils.

A hundred eyes and no nose and yet can see? Sieve.

From which side should one harness a horse? The outside.

What is it that can be both eaten and drunk? A toast.

Where may happiness always be found? In the dictionary.

Why does time fly? Because so many people are trying to kill it.

Which trees are not affected by fire? Ashes, because when burned they are still ashes.

What is it that belongs to yourself, but every one uses more than you do? Your name.

If a football match were played between collars and cuffs, what would be the result? A tie.

Why does a dog wag his tail when he is pleased? Because he cannot get anyone to wag it for him.

Why are crows the most contented of birds? Because they never complain without cause (caws).

When would you expect a boy to suffer from a stitch in his side? When he has been hemmed in by a crowd.

Strictly speaking how many days are there in a year? Three hundred and twenty-five, because 40 days are Lent and never returned.

The Easiest Way to Keep in Style

By MAE MARTIN

No woman would wear dresses, or blouses, or stockings of a color that's decidedly out of style or faded, if all of us knew how easy it is to make things fresh, crisp and stylish by the quick magic of home tinting or dyeing.

Anybody can tint or dye successfully with true, fadeless Diamond Dyes. Tinting with them is as easy as bluing, and dyeing takes just a little longer. New, stylish colors appear like magic, right over the old, faded colors. Diamond Dyes never spot, streak or run. They are real dyes, like those used when the cloth was made. Insist on them and save disappointment.

My new 64-page illustrated book, "Color Craft," gives hundreds of money-saving hints for renewing clothes and draperies. It's Free. Write for it now, to Mae Martin, Dept. D-143, Diamond Dyes, Burlington, Vermont.

PICTORIAL LIFE OF HERBERT HOOVER

No. 2

By Satterfield

2. His natural bent for machinery asserted itself, and he opened a blacksmith shop, and sold farm machinery.

3. Grandfather Minthorn, on his mother's side, was a bookish farmer, who used to read as he rode horseback.

CLAIMS BOULDER DAM IS PARAMOUNT ISSUE

Boulder Dam is the paramount issue in California, in the opinion of Chester H. Rowell, writer and former newspaper editor and on this great issue Governor Smith is completely out of step with the people of California, Rowell states.

In a published comment on Governor Smith's acceptance speech, Rowell finds that Smith is against the Boulder canyon dam, and against any dam in the Colorado river built by the federal government. This opposition, Rowell asserts, will constitute a great handicap to the New York man in winning California votes for himself.

"There can be no two sides in California toward the greatest constructive project in the history of our America," Rowell writes, "the major part of whose benefits, by the very laws of nature, must flow to California. What California thinks, and what California cares, on this subject was clearly shown at the August primary. California will not think otherwise, nor care less, in November."

"That issue is now drawn sharply between the presidential candidates. Hoover is aggressively for and Smith positively against this great Western project. Hoover understands it intimately and favors it enthusiastically. Smith is grotesquely ignorant of it, and announces a policy toward it which would mean, at best, its indefinite postponement in any form, and its total and permanent repudiation as a federal enterprise.

"Hoover is for the largest storage and the highest dam at Boulder Canyon which the engineers find physically feasible, and for the passage of the measure by the Senate (it has already passed the House) at the coming session. Smith is against a high dam, or a low dam, or any sort of a dam, at Boulder Canyon, or anywhere else on the Colorado river as a federal enterprise or out of federal funds.

"H said so in his speech of acceptance. The only interest of the federal government, he said, is in navigation. The experience of the only two men who, at the risk of their lives, ever succeeded in navigating this portion of the Colorado river, even in small boats, indicates how small that interest is. Niagara has been navigated more often and more safely.

"Instead, Smith proposes that the whole federal project be given up, and that the seven states get together and do whatever they can agree on themselves. How long it would take all seven of them to agree, without leadership or co-ordination, may be estimated by the length of time in which they have not agreed, even with federal co-operation and Secretary Hoover's leadership.

"How much longer it would take them to decide to tax their own people for the entire cost, and to agree on the distribution of investment and benefits, any Californian can guess. Long before that time could elapse the Imperial Valley would be at the bottom of a salt sea, and the growth of Southern California would have been paralyzed."

AMERICAN LEGION PREPARES TO AID BOULDER DAM FIGHT

In accordance with the resolutions passed by the recent state convention of the American Legion reaffirming its support of the proposed Swing-Johnson bill, providing for the construction of a high dam at or near Boulder canyon on the Colorado river, officials of the World War veterans' organization are laying plans to get into the fight for that measure at the coming session of Congress.

"American Legion posts in other states will be asked to join in the movement to secure the passage of the Swing-Johnson bill," State Adjutant James K. Fisk announces. "American Legion members in Congress will be petitioned to give consideration to the action of the California department in endorsing the Boulder Dam legislation and to aid in getting it passed at the coming session."

Fisk called attention in his appeal to other states that the American Legion in California has endorsed the Boulder Dam legislation for the sixth time.

Hope to Find Bones of Cardinal Wolsey

Leicester abbey, where Cardinal Wolsey told the abbot he had "come to lay his bones," is to undergo transformation. For many years the abbey grounds have been used as a farm, but now they are to be laid out as gardens and for recreation, Pierre Van Paassen, writing in the Atlantic Constitution, tells us. Wolsey's body was laid in an unknown grave, and it is thought that in the excavations necessary to adapt the grounds to their new use, some trace of it may be found, but as there is no record of any of the cardinal's possessions being buried with him the search seems likely to end in failure. One fact about Wolsey is probably not widely known. When he was at the height of his power he employed an Italian sculptor to make a magnificent sarcophagus beneath which he should lie. Leicester monks laid him to rest in plain earth and Henry VIII sequestered the sarcophagus with the rest of the cardinal's vast possessions. The sarcophagus remained government property and idle until 1806, when it was used to cover the body of Nelson after his remains were brought from Trafalgar. The man who said that England expected every man to do his duty, and led them in so doing, rests under the covering prepared for the man who was led away and ruined by overweening ambition.

Didn't Have Nerve to Cook the Little Pig

A Cleveland housewife who was entertaining some very special friends from out of the city, wanted to have a dinner that would linger in their memory for some time to come. What could be nicer, she thought, than a roast suckling pig?

Accordingly the little pig was sent home from the butcher's, unwrapped and laid on the kitchen table, where her small son caught sight of it and burst into tears.

"Don't cook that dear little piggie!" he wailed, disconsolately.

His mother sent him from the kitchen and picked the pig up to carry it across the room.

"In that moment," she reports, "my courage failed me. There was something so much like a little baby about that poor little pig that I set it down in a hurry. I realized then and there that I didn't have the nerve to cook it. Like my son, I wiped the tears out of my eyes and put the 'dear little piggie' out of my mind forever. We had roast beef for dinner."

Chinese Telegraphy

The transmission and receipt of telegrams in China is not so easy as in western countries, because the Chinese language lacks an alphabet and expresses itself by characters and signs that represent words. In consequence, for purposes of telegraphing an exact list has been made of signs in quantity sufficient for ordinary correspondence, and to each one of the signs a different number is given which is transmitted by the Morse telegraphic system. The code consists of 9,800 ciphers, the whole forming a pamphlet of 49 pages, each one of which contains 10 series of 20 characters with its corresponding number. On receipt of a telegram the operator looks up in his book the characters represented by the numbers transmitted by the apparatus and transcribes them into legible Chinese.

Boldest of Birds

There is no bird perhaps so inquisitive, so familiar, so "cheeky" as the robin, and so it is not surprising that this bird should so often choose some discarded article of domestic use as a suitable receptacle, after sundry modifications, for its eggs and subsequent family. Next to the robin in point of boldness and familiarity with man comes the wren, but the pair who were so far self-possessed as to convert a scarecrow into a desirable residence were gifted with more than ordinary daring. Possibly they knew that the old coat was not hung there over the row of newly-sown peas to scare away such respectable individuals as themselves, or perhaps they did not recognize the apparition as what it was intended to represent.

Dramatic Criticism

To the duke of York's house to see the new play called "The Man is the Master"; where the house was, it being not one o'clock, very full. By and by the king came; and we sat just under him, so that I durst not turn my back all the play. The most of the mirth was sorry, poor stuff, of eating of sack posset and slobbering themselves, and mirth fit for clowns; the prologue but poor, and the epilogue little in it, but the extraordinariness of it, it being sung by Harris and another in the form of the ballet. My wife extraordinary fine today in her flower tabby suite, bought a year or more ago.—Samuel Pepys.

Should Have Been Tanned

"Her smile was so irresistible," said a resourceful husband in speaking of "the other woman" in a recent divorce suit, "that I couldn't stay away from her." He basked in the sunshine of her smile until he got sunburnt.—Farm and Fireside.

CONTRIBUTES TO CIVILIZATION

In standards of service and in size our telephone industry leads the rest of the world by a tremendous margin.

There are 18,500,000 telephones in the United States, 60 per cent of all the instruments in the world. In comparison, South America has but 1.5 per cent of the world's total, and Asia but 3.3 per cent. Europe, which follows us, has the comparatively low mark of 27.6 per cent. In 1925 there were but 22,400,000,000 calls in the United States alone. The second country, Germany, had but 2,038,499,000 in the same period of time.

It is not illogical to suppose that this telephone supremacy of ours is in a large measure responsible for our world leadership in many lines. Our modern social state, business and industry would be impossible without adequate telephone facilities. The telephone industry has made an important contribution to civilization and prosperity.

Our election forecast is held in obedience until we have a straw vote among the bootleggers.

Solid perfumes to replace liquid scents have been introduced in this country following their invention in Paris.

CONTRACT LET FOR BRIDGE APPROACH

Contracts for the construction of five miles of highway approaches for the San Francisco Bay bridge between San Mateo and Hayward have been let to J. F. Knapp, of Stockton, it has been announced by Arthur Batty, president of the bridge company.

Bids for the work were called for early in August, and the lowest bid was submitted by Knapp. The work covered by the contract will call for the expenditure of $250,000. The highway will extend for three miles on the San Mateo side, connecting the western bridgehead with the junction of Third avenue and the Bay Shore boulevard in San Mateo, and approximately two miles across the lowlands on the eastern side of the bay. The roadway will be 30 feet wide and surfaced with an 8-inch layer of concrete, in accordance with specifications approved by the State Highway Commission. The contract calls for completion of the work by December 1 of this year.
